This task follows a POGIL-like approach, helping students to understand the "why" of polyatomic compounds.Students will learn about forming ionic compounds that involve basic polyatomic ions. Support for understanding the correct way to write chemical formulas is included in the activity.The presentation allows manipulation (drag and drop) of pieces when working in "Edit" view. Preview 3 slides here: :Do you need review or practice on naming compounds for your students? You may want to provide these fun word searches instead of regular worksheets. A digital version is included for students learning remotely or in a hybrid model. Watch this video to see how it works.If you are teaching remotely or hybrid, you can use the Google Slides version included as a download link in the teacher guide. Students will be able to type directly into the slides and drag and drop as needed. What is included?Th★Digital Interactive Resource★Go paperless with this FREE interactive resource for Google Slides that will help your chemistry or physical science students as they learn to name ionic and covalent (molecular) compounds. Students will drag movable objects and type to enter information as they solve 25 ionic & covalent problems. This resource should work well as a bellringer, wrap-up, or homework activity. Includes a detailed Teacher Answer Key.Ideal for Distance Learning!•Will these wThis is a mixture of explanations, examples and practice problems to learn and/or practice how to name ionic compounds and how to determine the chemical formula from the name. The deck covers main group elements, transition metals & polyatomic ions. Product has 2 formats.Format 1-google slides. Students can enter their answers in text boxess. Format 2-boom cards-students can enter their answers through boom cards hosted at boom learning. This allows for the students to be able to checkSubjects:0Digital Chemistry Google Slides worksheets covering making ionic compounds from anions and cations. Distance learning.Students copy, drag and drop movable anion and cation puzzle pieces to make ionic compounds to represent given compound names and formulas. 100+ ready compound name and formula slides (monatomic and polyatomic ions)template slides with extra ions (17 anions and 15 cations, so you can make 250+ different compounds!) Students learn how to balance anion and cation charges. printaThis is a simple self-grading 15-question multiple choice quiz for high school chemistry students. Each question presents a formula for an ionic compound and four names to choose from. It includes both monatomic and polyatomic ions.The formulas are listed below:Mg(NO₃)₂(NH₄)₃PO₄ZnSSr(HCO₃)₂CuAtCdS(NH₄)₂SO₄H₂CO₃Na₂CrO₄KHCO₃CsC₂H₃O₂Ca(NO₃)₂Na₂SO₄PbCl₄KOHSubjects:Grades:9th - 12th, Higher Education0
